WEEKLY SPORT LETTER.

(By C. H. ZUBER.)

Cincinnati, Sept. 2.-While the two backs during the past week, neither so flereely. During the past seven days Boston has occupied first place for a balf a game of the place. But unexies for the New Yorks when the Giants October 3 to 10, were not expected to win, upset the place. During the present week Chi the local fans in the order flamed.

Local base ball enthusiastists intend to show their appreciation of the ability, stamina and loyalty of Manager Charlie Herzog, of the Reds, by present ing him with a handsome testimonial on Sunday, September 13, on which oc cassion there will be a double header a Redland Field, with the St. Louis Car dinals as the Reds opponent. Severa hundred dollars have already been subscribed and additions are being made to the fan daily, many of these coming from the fans in other cities who oceasionally visit Cincinnati and who have been rooting for and admiring the work of the Reds all season. The com mittee having charge of the affair has established offices in Room 311 of the Chamber of Commerce, where contributions to the fun are being received. The Cardinals, by the way, will be the opponents on the next two Sundays, playing on game on September 6, and the double-header above referred to on September 15,

New Orleans isn't the only city in the country where the business men are fighting for the resurrection of the racing game. A well organized effort is be sular Affairs Committee on the pending made by the merchants of Hot ing Philippine Independence Bill deat the famous Spa, with the bet the Philippines "at this time," Euro-

Efforts are being made by the sport cope and kept McGraw's men in first writers of the country to clear up the doubts that exist as to the real enam cago and St. Louis will battle with the pion of the middle-weights. There are Reds, while the Bostons are playing in some six claimants to the title, and each Philadelphia and the New Yorks in man has some argument that gives him Brooklyn. It's still an open flag for the right to be considered. The more the "glad rag" with the St. Louis Car. I rominent personally named holders of ginals and the Bostons as the choice of the title are Jack Dillon, Jeff Smith. Jimmy Clabby, George Chipp, Al Me-Coy, Eddie McGoorty and Mike Gibbons -and not a Jack Dempsy or a Bob Fitzsimmons in the lot. Under these conditions it might be a good idea to have a battle royal, throw the entire lot into the ring at once, and let the sole survivor wear the middle-weight crown

Country," retaining up to the present very much of the glorious grandeur in which it came from the hands of the Great Architect,

Here and there, however, are a few spots which mark the touch of man. One of these is the Gingseng Farm of Mr. Wooten, some three miles "up the creek" and on he mountain top. The roads in this region have a habit of standing on end, and the route to his farm is no exception. Once there, one feels repaid for time and travel, for the proprietor courteously entertains and instructs his visiters. "You appear to have gotten up here where no one can find you," I ventured to suggest, "Well, when I located here twenty-three years ago," he said, "they couldn't find me so easily, but now there's no difficulty." His "clearing" embraces about a hundred acres, nearly all under cultivation. And such cultivation! In his garden he has two beds of gingseng, and golden seal, and grapesthe crops growing one above the other in that order. The first of these is 6 feet wide by 100 feet long, and the crop now growing on that 600 feet of ground this year will add $800 to the enterprising owner's bank account, most as good as raising tobacco. The gingseng goes chiefly to China at $7 per pound, while the golden seal, or yellow root, said to be the most profitable crop, is sold to American chemists at $5 per pound. His grape crop is prolifie, and on the occasion of my visit he and his good wife had almost the entire rear porch floor covered with bottled grape juice-sufficient to supply Mr. Bryan with his favorite "belly wash" until its time for him to run for President ome more. In addition to these products Mr. Wooten has a large bed of mouthly strawberries, which were in full bloom and bearing, while every known vegetable filled his gardens. He informed me that he settled on this spot 23 years ago, with a single dollar, and that he had it yet: but didn't venture to say how many thousands had been added to it.

T'other night at 9:30, while sitting in the quiet of my com, intently digging the Maysville happenings out of the newly arrived copy of THE LEDGER, there was a Springs, Ark., to have the State Legis clared that it would be "impolitic and terrific explosion of dynamite within fifty feet of the lature pass a law permitting horse rac viewise" to discuss the disposition of hotel, which echoed and re-echoed in the mountains for several minutes. Many of the guests had retired, but the way they piled out of their rooms and filled the hallw was a sight for the gods. Few took time to don even their kimonas, and many of the ladies were so thinly clad that the procession reminded one of an old-fashioned transparency show. The damage was nil, but the scare lasted all night, most of the ladies sitting up till daylight. The explosion was in the rear of the Negro cabins, the purpose being to frighten the colored waiters, and drive them out of the Valley, as some of the inhabitants of this region had declared that no "nigger" should make his home here, Several of the "help" lit out on foot-back that night, but most of 'em remained until, a few nights following, and other dynamite stick was fired at a hotel farther up the creek, when there was an emptying of the entire valley of its colored help, and the hotel guests were waited on by the proprietors, their wives and daughters and such other white help as could be obtained. Funny, isn't it? They damn the Negro if he doesn't work, and dynamite him it he does! Following the second outrage the citizens held a well-attended law-and-order meeting Sunday afternoon at which there was raised a fund of $250, as reward for the dynamiters. The cause being now removed, it is safe to say that the trouble is ended.

it does begin it takes its own time to quit, and it's more difficult to get away than it was to get here. I had planned to start home three separate mornings, but the heavy rains of the night before had made the mountain roads dangerous and frequently impassable. On Friday, however, a. stalwart Tennesseean, for sufficient consideration, agreed to make the run to Hartsville,, 26 miles as the crow flies, but of varying distances as the routes lay. In company of three ladies, all Kentuckians, we left the Palace Hote. at 9 o'clock. For several miles the well-drained roadway was quite good; but when the tableland was reached the bottom seemed to have dropped out, and our chauffeur shunted off onto a new route-somewhat longer, very much rougher, escaping the mountain slips only to encounter th dangers of drowning. Until the summit was reached al was well, but the descent simply showed a couple of streakof ledge-rock where the road had been, and down which a stream was still flowing. We were now in a narrow mountain-hemmed valley, with Tate ereck and our "Ford" disputing for mastery. Small streams fed the creek at fre quent intervals, and it grew and grew as we proceeded, until it became a raying torrent. We must have crossed it fifty times, and each time it was deeper and muddier and wilder than before. En route we came upon Pleasantshade. a stringtown settlement of pure white buildings, that looked the home of perfect peace and contentment. Just here our "shofer" grew talkative. "This is the place," said he, 'where the shooting occurred last week." Two men had been candidates for sheriff of the county, and the de feated one had sworn that his successful rival should not fill the office. And he didn't, for the rival filled him with slugs from a double shotgun, and then shot dead the village blacksmith, whose only offense was that he was then engaged in shoeing the sheriff's horse. Added to this grew some story was the cheerful information that we were nov coming to the creek crossing where a drummer had recently drowned in an attempt to cross. When we reached the place the driver covered the front of the machine with a cloth and sailed in, the water entering the bed of the ma chine, compelling the ladies to hold up their feet as high as was prudent, but the engine "went dead" near midstream. Fortunately a colored man, mounted on a harnessed mule had followed us from the village, anticipating our trouble. He soon rode into the surging torrent, hitched onto the front axle, and pulled us to the opposite shore thus demonstrating that the Tennessee mountain mule i the only successful rival to the Ford machine!

Finally we reached the Carthage pike and bowled into Hartsville in time to step on the train for Gallatin, which was reached at 2 p. m. Here was everybody in Tennessec and several other States attending the Fair and Horse Show, and not a room to be had. Consequently we took the night train for Cincinnati, reaching "Riverview" at 1:36 Saturday afternoon rich in "experiences", but happy in possession of life and limb, ing that the public is dance mad and Candidates for Commander-In-Chief picture mad, and that if plays are to be popular they must be mad and plays.

Persons fed upon picture melodrama which can be made to move as fast War. More than 5,000 members of the bad been digging the well and had as the eyes of the audience can stand it, want nothing upon the stage that is not "sensational."

PICTURES AND THE PLAY.

Charles Frohman is quoted as say

A good deal of gloomy comment follows Mr. Frohman's statement. What can be madder than plays we have already hadf is asked. "Already Fitch and Augustus Thomas are as old-fashioned as Shakespeare," observes the Philadelphia Inquirer. "One wonders what sort of plays those of the future will be."

But photographs have not destroyed painting. They have not reduced the ert of description to the position of beggary. Why should moving pictures rout the drama from the stage? Very probably many indifferent plays will be unsalable. Many authors who Somer, Indiana; Frank O. Cole, New have done no more than crudely to Jersey; P. H. Coney, Kansas, and Thos. photograph life will find themselves either writing scenarios for photodramas or turning to other employments. Plays which have depended mainly upon their pictorial aspects- templated by members of the Ways and and they have been numerous-may give way to the films. But art will al. an emergency internal revenue bill, ways fill the theater. The outlook is that we shall have fewer indifferent plays and musical shows which cost more, but are not worth more than pictures. There will still be room upon the stage for the really meritorious play. Mr. Frohman has "the honor to coal, present" several players who do not, and need not, fear picture competition. And he will furnish plays for them. Not the mad play, or the bad play, but the good play will survive. If there are fewer plays than we have had there will be fewer theaters built to fill an unfelt want and standing idle half the year. For the last few years there has been a surplus of theaters and not enough plays of merit to fill them at $2 a ticket. Picture plays at from a half-dollar to a dime are unquestiouably better value for the outlay than many laughters he begins retreating as indifferent plays which have depended upon scenery, upon popular names and upon skillful press agentry for their
